‘Eurasianist Strategy for the West: Operation Belisarius’

(Presentation for the Multipolarity Conference 29 April 2023 - Europe Section)

Het is een eer hier vandaag te kunnen spreken voor het Nederlandse volk, het volk van de Lage Landen dat al sinds duizend jaar woont aan de grijze Noordzee die de west-einder is van het grote Eurazië - en te spreken voor de grote zaak die alle volkeren van Eurazië samenbindt in hun strijd voor een post-globalistische toekomst, een toekomst waarin ook Nederland een plaats toekomt in de zon.

‘It is an honour to speak here to you today for the people of the Netherlands, who have lived over a thousand years on the shores of the gray North Sea, at the very sea-boundary of great Eurasia - and to speak for a great cause that binds together all the peoples of Eurasia as they struggle for a post-globalist future, a future in which also the Netherlands deserve a place in the sun.’

If one world-historical and geo-political reality has become clear over the last few years - a reality unfortunately too long known to too few, but fortunately to all of us gathered here today - it is that a great evil has become incarnated in the West. Almost a quarter century ago now, in 1979, the Iranian Revolution already named this evil: it called West’s most powerful state, the USA, the ‘Great Satan’. The UK was just one step lower on that geopolitical ladder of demonic hierarchy: it was the ‘Little Satan’. Of course, if we follow that line of describing the globalist-atlanticist world, then my own country, the Netherlands, may be described as ‘Mini-Satan’ - a pirate republic haven for a small but old and vicious force of high finance usury and ‘rules-based order’ institutions. Most of us, here gathered in our Europe Section of today’s multipolar conference, are from countries that are - still - part of the unipolar West: all of us dissidents know how it is to have to live and work in the lair of the beast.

We, Western dissidents, also know that our part of Europe is every way as Satan-possessed as America. In certain ways, Western Europe is even more of a totalitarian-Orwellian dystopia, with less freedom and more repression. Whereas America itself still has some constitutional rights, such as those of free speech, free assembly and self-defence, here in Europe we had all-out lockdowns, full-blown vaccination mandates, brutal police repression and open censorship. In fact, most of Europe is nothing but an American colony, as amply proven by the lock-step servility of its ‘leaders’ during the Ukraine Crisis and the NordStream affair, and over the last decades it has not been able to oppose the imperialist-globalist agenda in any meaningful way. Europe is under the heel with what is factually globalist neo-colonial rule: globalist-engineered ethnic replacement (‘refugee crisis’) settles Third World colonists in our lands, globalist-sponsored social degeneracy (‘sexual revolution’) dissolves our indigenous cultures and globalist-imposed bankster usury (‘neo-liberalism’) plunders our human and natural resources. ‘EU governance’ and ‘NATO security’ are shams: they are nothing but globalist control mechanisms to keep Europe in under the merciless colonial rule of a globalist-nihilist elite that may have its home-base in the Anglosphere but is now thinking and planning trans-nationally. For that elite, the 'world is not enough': it is now waging an all-out multi-dimensional war to conquer the ultimate geopolitical prize: the Eurasian landmass and the great land powers Russia and China. But a globalist victory in that war - and we may say that Aleksandr Dugin's 'Last War of the World Island' has started on 22-02-2022 - is all but certain. In fact, as I argued in my 'Rite of Spring' essay on our shared space Geopolitica.ru, it appears that the globalist elite has overplayed its hand and is now caught up in an unstoppable down-ward spiral. The globalist 'Empire of Lies' is being shaken to its foundations by the military miscalculation, reputational disaster and economic ruin following its overreaching attack on the Eurasian coalition of Russia and China. What does that mean for us Western dissidents? What risk and opportunities does the present crisis and possible future collapse of the 'Empire of Lies' pose for us dissidents?

We should remember that after the fall of the First Rome and the West-Roman Empire, the East-Roman Empire survived for a thousand years - and that the Second Rome, Byzantium, was not only instrumental in re-civilizing the West during the Renaissance but also in reconquering the First Rome only decades after it had fallen. A great general, Belisarius, set off to the West to destroy and drive back the barbarian kingdoms founded by the Vandals, the Ostro-Goths and the Visi-Goths. His army was a mixture of mercenaries, barbarians and auxiliaries from the reconquered Western lands. Is it possible that the Third Rome, which is the restored Orthodox-Christian Russia that is the centre of our Eurasianist movement, will again re-conquer the First Rome? It might: as we speak, the barbarian rule over Western Europe is slowly weakening. As the terrorized people of the West slowly descend into a new dark age of tyranny, lawlessness and poverty, its power structures are increasingly strained and likely to dissolve by loss of public trust, sectarianism and infighting. In such a climate, a Eurasianist 'Operation Belisarius' - a Reconquista of the West - may become an option. Many dispossessed and disaffected Westerners would welcome a Eurasianist liberation of their ruined lands: the restoration of liberty, the return of the rule of law, the rediscovery of tradition and the renaissance of culture. What can we Western dissidents do to facilitate this ambitious but necessary 'Operation Belisarius'? We may hope that next year the Wagner Group will hold its victory parade in Berlin or that Chinese peace keeping troops will patrol the streets of Rome, but I estimate that the Götterdämmerung of the West will take more time. It may even take a decade and a life-time. So what can we Western dissidents do now?

We can prepare the way, we can lay the groundwork for the Reconquista. Some of us may do this in exile, working as publicists and supporters of the Eurasianist movement, some of us may do this at home, working as activists and politicians to plant the seeds of alternative forms of governance, law and media. As no others, we Western dissidents know the globalist enemy: its strengths and weaknesses. We can analyze the obstacles and opportunities - the reality on the ground. We know that only a minority of the Western peoples are complicit in the globalist evil. My country, the Netherlands, used to be famous for fair trade, honest dealing and solid accounting - things that can be put to use for either good or evil. So let me give you my best guess 'account' of political calculus. I would venture that of the core Western population, perhaps only 10% is really politically lost - irretrievably caught up in corruption, mired in sin and maddened by Woke. Perhaps another 20% are simply apolitical collaborators - working for money without inner allegiance to globalism. Against them stand another 10% and 20% - those that openly or secretly oppose the globalist New World Order. That leaves 40% in the middle - people who just want to live their lives with their families and who are too dependent on and scared of the totalitarian system. So the percentages do not look too bad - the demographic balance is stacked against the globalist occupation regime, not unlike the situation in the Global South, such as British India, when it started its independence struggle. In fact, one big push may bring the whole globalist house of cards down. We as dissidents should be working towards that - which means being prepared.

We should encourage our Eurasianist friends in the East to do everything they can to foster a new generation of Western Eurasianists - a generation that can take over the reigns of power once the whole globalist house of cards comes tumbling down. To add a 'soft power' strategy to a 'hard power' strategy. Young Westerners may be invited East to do experience things that are now scarce in the West: a good education, a religious life, a military career, a year of work on a farm or in a factory, a proper political schooling. The hearts and minds of masses of young Westerners have already long ago turned away from the filthy decadence, the obsolete illusions and the empty materialism of the 'modern way' of globalist-nihilism. They long for a different future, a new start and a real life. All of this the rising Eurasianist East and the new Eurasianist movement can offer them. That way, we can turn the tables on the globalist-atlanticist enemy: as the globalist attack on Eurasia bogs down and falters, and as the 'Empire of Lies' cracks and splinters, it will simply implode from within.

Finally, I have a word of warning to our friends from the East. As somebody who was born and raised in the West, and who lived and worked in the West, I would like to say this: do not believe that you can negotiate with the globalist elite that rules the West, do not have the illusion that there can be compromise. What is needed is steady pressure, steady patience, steady work - and an iron will to see the struggle right through to the end. There is no half-way peace to be had with the globalist-atlanticist enemy - this evil must be brought down once and for all. This struggle will have to be seen through to the very bitter end - to the 'Triumph of the Will'. A fight for freedom, ours and yours.
